SENATE

By FOLIO Staff

A new discussion format made an appearance at the May 10 meeting of the University Senate. After meeting as one group for regular business, members formed five smaller groups so that more points of view could be expressed on particular topics. After each discussion session, members reconvened as a large group to hear summaries of the discussions.

There were two discussion sessions, one in the morning, one in the afternoon. The morning session dealt with the Senate's role in the University and the community, its powers, membership, and financing. The afternoon session dealt with enrolment quotas at the University.

ROLE OF THE SENATE

The morning discussions arose from the fact that The Universities Act is in the process of revision. Members were asked to comment upon various sectors of the Senate's role and suggest changes which might be incorporated into the new Act.

Group chairmen reported that there was general satisfaction with the revitalized role the Senate has been playing in University affairs. There is no doubt, it was felt, that the Senate's attempts to create distinct, positive links between the University and the community—through its task forces, for example—have been beneficial for both. Fostering this relationship is seen as one of the most important roles the Senate can fulfill.

In terms of specific legislation in The Universities Act, most members felt that the Senate's terms of reference should remain as broad as possible. One group spokesman explained that "legislation now is vague enough to allow us flexibility in our actions, and it should continue this way." Too specific a definition of duties would restrict the areas of inquiry to which the Senate might apply itself.

The question was raised as to whether there should be one Senate for all four of Alberta's universities. There was almost unanimous opposition to this suggestion. One Senate, it was felt, would imply four identical institutions, which is far from being the case. Not only are there academic differences, but geographical and environmental ones as well. At the same time, it was suggested that more formal liaisons could be maintained in areas of common interest. One group suggested province-wide task forces wherever possible.

It was generally agreed that the membership of the Senate was well-balanced, that it has sufficient representation from both University and public sectors. One group, however, felt that more "ordinary" people should be appointed to the Senate, while another group felt that more academics might improve the expertise of the Senate. It was agreed that there was no sense of academic intimidation, that is, that academics did not attempt to force their views on the public members.

Virtually all of the discussion groups felt that there should be a change in the allocation of the Senate's budget, which presently comes from the Board of Governors. One group suggested that funds might come "right off the top," from the provincial government. The rationale underlying the suggested change lies in the realm of accountability—the Senate wishes to pursue its ends without fear of reprisal. A member of one group pointed out, however, that the Senate is a University-based organization, and that it should receive its funding from a University source such as the Board of Governors. This slight partisan interest need not interfere with the Senate's stated purposes, he added, nor with its methods of enquiry. Another member felt that, in any event, the Senate must presume good will and work from that premise.

UNIVERSITY ENROLMENT QUOTAS

The afternoon discussion session dealt with matters pertaining to quotas in various faculties at the University. The matter is presently under study by the Task Force on University Enrolment Quotas. Enrolment quotas now exist in several faculties including Medicine, Dentistry, and Law; and University President Max Wyman, speaking to the Senate, foresees quotas in every faculty and school in the not-too-distant future.

In the quota faculties and schools the major criterion for admittance is academic, a criterion which has not changed since the inception of quotas. Many groups questioned the soundness of this method. The spokesman for one group expressed a desire for more personal, hence subjective, selection criteria. At the same time, she realized this would be a difficult task at best because of the numbers applying for admission.

The existence of quotas in the first place is due to costs of facilities and labor. It has been estimated, for example, that total costs involved in establishing one chair of dentistry at the University approach $250,000. The financial burden in other faculties and schools is similarly enormous. (Continued on page two)

SANDIN LECTURER ANNOUNCED

GUY OURISSON, President of Université Louis Pasteur in Strasbourg, France, will be the guest speaker at the 1974 Reuben Benjamin Sandin Lecture Series. The series will begin Tuesday, June 18 and continue through June 21.

Dr. Ourisson is an internationally known organic chemist who has made valuable contributions in determining the chemical structure of steroids and terpenes, and in determining how these compounds are synthesized in nature. He studied for his PhD at Harvard University under the direction of Professor L. F. Fieser and obtained his degree in 1952. Two years later he was awarded a DSc from the University of Paris. In 1955 Dr. Ourisson became maître de conférences (lecturer) at the Université de Strasbourg; in 1958 he was promoted to full professor. He accepted his present position in 1971.

The Sandin lecture series was established in 1962 under the sponsorship of the Department of Chemistry. The annual event commemorates the career of Reuben Sandin, Professor Emeritus of Chemistry, who devoted more than 40 years to research and teaching in organic chemistry at the University.

The lectures will be given each day at 11 a.m. in E1-60 Chemistry Building. Please consult "This Week and Next" in the June 13 issue of FOLIO for lecture titles.

One alternative placed in front of the discussion groups was the lottery scheme, whereby draws would be held to determine successful applicants to quota faculties. Each group expressed some support for the concept, although one member expressed strong opposition, stating that the adoption of such a scheme would be tantamount to an admission of failure for the academic system.

Speaking later to the Senate as a whole, Dr. Wyman voiced serious reservations about the lottery system. "I am convinced," he said, "that if we went to a lottery system, it wouldn't be very long before it was attacked. The very first time we eliminated a student who had a 95 percent average, and this was brought to the attention of the public, they would think we were out of our minds. How could we say to a student like that: 'You cannot be a doctor' or 'you cannot be a lawyer'? I don't think that the lottery system would survive more than one or two uses before it is severely attacked."

Dr. Wyman sees no discernible solution to the quota problem, but referring to the present method of selection he cautioned that "you simply cannot say that the academic system has necessarily produced bad professionals. And you cannot say that there is another system of selection that would produce better professionals than we do now."

CORRECTION

In the Senate report in the May 30 issue of FOLIO, the item on the University Centre should have stated that the first displays will be prepared by the Department of Drama and the Faculty of Engineering.

SING-OUT EDMONTON SEEKS NEW MEMBERS

Sing-Out Edmonton is a singing group, with band and dancers, run by the members themselves. They have plans for a full season ahead with a Spokane tour at the end of August.

They are looking for singers, dancers, and musicians who need not be experienced but who are willing to help build up the group and take its ideals seriously. These ideals are expressed in the group's slogan "Up with

"Do you promise faithfully to observe and loyally to maintain the statutes, customs, privileges and liberties of this your University . . . ?" That same question has been put to graduands of this University by seven presidents, each of whom has added a new dimension to this institution's customs, its governance, and its freedoms. This year's graduates will likely remember MAX WYMAN (left) as the president who opened the University. As described at Convocation by his colleague Henry Kreisel, Vice-President (Academic): "In a public institution there were to be no secrets . . . He supported open meetings of the Board and of the General Faculties Council. He believed that students should have a strong voice in the government of the University. He believed passionately that people should be able to express themselves freely and without fear. He believed that no one had a monopoly on truth, and that great discoveries often emerged from the most unexpected quarters. Therefore the rights of all had to be protected."

people" and are concerned with the importance of the individual man and woman. The group also hopes to encourage young people to become more responsible and to develop a sense of showmanship, creativity, and organization.
